the book examines the aspects of focus within the recent minimalist paradigm focus is viewed here as a grammar's response to the requirements of the systems external to narrowly defined language thus the properties of focus are explored at the two interfaces syntax phonology and syntax semantics the book surveys some recent views on the interface and left periphery status of focus with respect to the semantics of focus the book argues for its tripartite division into information non exhaustive identification and exhaustive identification it further contains a proposal of the phase based derivation of sentences featuring focus in english and finally offers an account of polish in which focus interestingly correlates with the phenomenon of scrambling abstract this paper describes a question answering system which is a limited instance of the general bidirectional architecture suggested by appelt 1987 the novel features of our approach include the use of a linguistically well motivated set of functional features a bidirectional grammar which encodes these features directly a question answering program which uses the thematic organisation of the user s input to construct a cooperative reply and a tactical generation component which can be used with montague semantics the notion of focus structure in this work refers to the distinction between categorialthetic and identificational sentences the central claim is that the syntactic representation of every sentence has to encode which of these types of focus structure is realized this claim is discussed in great detail with respect to syntax intonation and semantics within the framework of the minimalist program it is shown that the incorporation of focus structure into syntax offers new perspectives for a solution of vexing problems in syntax and semantics for example fronting preposing topicalisation is treated as a syntactic operation which clearly belongs to core grammar i e is not optional or stylistic the semantic notion of quantifier raising is dispensed with in favour of a focus structural treatment of phenomena which gave rise to it the book appeals to generative linguists and to functional linguists who do not believe in an unbridgeable gap between the formal and functional analysis of language
