the study beautifully illustrated focuses on the masks of gods, goddesses and demons worn by the newars of Kathmandu Valley. It deals with contexts in which the dancers wear the masks and with legends concerning the dances.

Claude Lévi-Strauss relates his amazement in front of the strangeness and the plastic force of Indian masks, particularly those of the northern Pacific. Starting from a description of these masks, he analyzes their aesthetic code, linking them to the customs and legends of the peoples who create them. He shows how these masks form a complex language. He thus conducts a study on original peoples and a reflection on style.
